upon reaching the ante-room sank into a chair in a faint. Two trained nurses who were in the court room were hastily summoned and in a few moments Mrs. Chadwick was revived. She was in no condition to return to the court room, however, and Judge Taylor adjourned the trial until today.

It was an exciting time for Mrs. Chadwick and she took the keenest interest in all proceedings. When District Attorney Sullivan outlined the case he expected to prove against her, Mrs. Chadwick's eye did not leave his face for a second and drank in every word uttered by Sullivan with the greatest anxiety. When her counsel, J. P. Dawley, rose to state her side of the case, her face bright ened and she followed him as eagerly as she had listened to Sullivan.

The trial made rapid progress yes-

From all that has been written of the part and Mansfield's remarkable make-up and performance, one can only marvel at the lack of knowledge or judgment on the part of dramatists who have so long permitted this role to remain off the stage. Mr. Mansfield himself says Tzar Ivan leaves him after each performance in a state bordering on blood, no violence, no deaths in the play other than the apotheosis of choler in which the Tzar, after a life of excess, collapses. Mansfield made great preparatory study for this scene and it has been referred to as acting which lifts him to a niche all history of the stage. #### The Weather.

Unsettled with rain tonight and probably Wednesday. Slightly warmer tonight with cooler Wednesday.

The law allows the city supervis-ors to sit but six days in second-class for mayor. He seems to have also cities, except once every four years, given them a great deal they didn't when they may sit for four weeks. The supervisors this year sat 52 days, 46 days longer than allowed by law, and instead of drawing the legal whitewashing everybody, but they his shadow, returning to await the receipts for several hundred dollars they present a bill to the city for over $400, which the council has allowed. Now, if the law permitted days they were in session they were in session illegally, and a question for the administration to decide is, if they were not legally in session, was anything they did during that time legal? Is the city assessment as supervised by the board of supervisors legal, and if it is not legal, can the city levy and collect taxes on it? This is a serious question, aside from the one of the legality of paying the supervisors over four hundred dollars more than the city can legally pay them under the charter. The city would find itself in a nice fix if the administration blunders along in its usual way, and some taxpayer brings suit and knocks out the assessment and tax levy.

Why doesn't Mayor Yeiser favor Mr. Terrell collecting every cent he claims the city owes him and which the city disputes, in the courts? Why is it Mayor Yeiser is so anxious to risk the taxpayers' interests in the creditors. E. C. Stockwell, town iness this morning. At an early courts in some cases such as the chain gang suits, and so anxious for assignee. the city to pay the claims without a fight, in others? Does anyone who knows Contractor Terrell think for a minute that he would ever compromise for $400, a claim against the city for two or three thousand dollars, if he had the remotest chance of collecting it by due process of law? Hasn't Mayor Yeiser every reason to believe that if Mr. Terrell had not been given every assurance by his attorneys that he had no case against the city, he would never consent to settle his claim for $400? If Mayor Yeiser has any reason at all for thinking Mr. Terrell has no case, against the city, why does he want the city to pay over $400 of the taxpayers' money?

There is talk of repealing that portion of the license ordinance giving the mayor the power to revoke a saloon license for Sunday violation. Why should it be repealed? Why should any saloon man except one who wants to violate the law, want yor shorn of this authority?

does it make whether the clause is in the ordinance or not? Is the mayor himself trying to escape the respon sibility for enforcing the law against Sunday violation? Let the ordinance stand as it is. When the last city election was held the saloon keepers supported Mayor Yeiser. They took the consequences of their choice. He is a "Smooth Boy" and don'd you

DESPERATE MAN

Attempted to Get Out of Nashville Jail.

Nashville, Tenn., Mar. 7 .- A plan to break jail, in which were involved Jack Williams, alleged counterfeiter: Paul Battier, alleged diamond thief, and Willis Claiborne, held in connection with a recent plan to free Williams, was frustrated here last night, after Williams had under way a hole in the grating between his cell and that of the other men. The information came from the outside and the plan was nipped in good time. Mrs. Elizabeth Price, mother of Pete Price, who not long since effected his escape with Williams, is under arrest, alleged to have furnished the saws to the prisoners.

Williams recently boasted to a Chicago detective that he would be in the Windy City in sixty days, which led Sheriff Cartwright to double the jail guards. This is his third attempt to get out. Battier is Eutire Orchestra, under sentence for bringing stolen First three rows of Balcony property from Montgomery here.

There was no blinking the fact that while a parliamentarian trooper might pass through this land unquestioned, especially as so many soldiers were making their way north, a trooper with a beautiful young woman of aristocratic appearance would certainly cause comment and excite curiosity. The nearer they came to Carlisle the greater would be the danger of embarrassing questions. They had a wild country to traverse, bleak bills and moorland, and the roads as bad as they could be; but, although they left Clitheroe at 5 o'clock it was past noontide before they reached Kirby Ste phen, a distance of less than forty miles. They had met no one, and so far as the morning section of the journey was concerned, the road to Scotland was clear enough. At the squalld inn of Kirby Stephen they partook of what each thought was their last meal together for a long time to come, and then, in spite of her protests, he accompanied her east out of the town and into the lonely hill country. "Dear lass, it breaks my heart to part with you in this way," stammered William, engulfing her small hand in both of his, then drawing her to him. 'It shames my manhood to let you go this wild road alone. I must see you to your own door, in spite of all the Cromwells that ever broke their country's laws.

'No, no!" she pleaded. "We went over all that last night and settled it. I am safe enough. It is you who are in danger. You will come to me when this trouble is passed and done with."

"By St. Andrew, I'll come to you as soon as this letter is in Traquair's

"Again, no, no! Cromwell is a hard man, and if you steal through his cordon you must not come within his power in a hurry."

For answer he kissed her protesting lips again and again, then she hid her face in his somber cloak and sobbed quietly. The patient horses, now accustomed to any vagaries on the part of their owners, stood quietly close together.

"Goodby, goodby," she cried breathlessly, then whisked herself from him and was gone, never looking back but waving her hand as she rode. He sat motionless as she had left him. At the top of the distant hill, outlined against the dark sky, she drew in and stood. Dimly he saw the flutter of something white in her waving band, and he drew from his breast her own handkerchief and waved in return. He pressed his hand across his eyes and, when he saw more clearly, only the blank sky and the bare hilltop confronted him. The rain began to fall once more as he passed again through Kirby Stephen, but he paid slight heed to it and pushed on to Penrith, where be bought a day's provender, so that he would have no need to make request for food as he neared the danger spot. Just before darkness set in the sky cleared somewhat, and he saw ahead of him the gloomy bulk of Carlisle castle. He turned aside from the main road, and before the night became black found quarters for himself in a barn that contained some fodder for his horse. He threw himself down on the fragrant hay and slept peacefully. In the morning the rain was again falling steadily. He reconnoitered his position. There was no dwelling near, and he determined to let his horse rest all that day and the next night, so that he should be in trim for anything that might happen when the pinch came. A day more or less could make little difference with the effectual guarding of the bridge, which was now doubtless held as strongly as it could be. He was convinced that success must de-pend ultimately on the speed of his horse, and he could not enter the contest with an exhausted animal. Bruce was never so carefully tended as on the day before the crisis, and as his intelligent head turned toward his master

he seemed to know that something unusual was afoot.

On the second day Armstrong thought it best not to enter Carlisle too early in the morning. He wished to mingle with a crowd and not to ride the streets alone. The second night in the barn, with the rest of the day and the night before, had left both himself and his horse fit to face anything that might ensue. The day was fine. The clouds had cleared away, and the sun was shining on the sodden ground. When he came in sight of the main road he saw what appeared to be an army marching north. Far on toward the gates of Carlisle rode a group of horsemen, and at the rear another squad of mounted men encouraged the laggards to keep up for a little longer. Armstrong sat on his horse until the latter company was abreast of him.

No one asked Armstrong who he was, and the elaborate fiction he had prepared to account for himself was not called for. The troopers were worn out by their contest with the elements and the roads, and all curiosity was dead in them. There stood Carlisle in front, and that was enough. The foot oldiers struggled on, in no definite order of formation, each doing the best he could. The officers rode silent behind them. Thus they all marched into Carlisle without question, and in their company the man the army was seeking. After a slight delay and pause in the streets the new troops moved on to the castle.

Armstrong found no difficulty in falling behind, being thus free of the town. He knew every turn of every street and lane in the place as well as he knew the inside of his own pocket. He resolved to ride leisurely to the bridge, cut through the guard, if it did not prove too strong, and then trust to the spur. The town was thronged with military, but no one paid the slightest attention to him. As he jogged along very nonchalantly, more contented with the prospect than a few days before he would have thought possible. Bruce awoke the echoes by neighing loudly.

"Now, old man, what did you do that for?" whispered William.

WILL BE PROVIDED FOR BY SCHOOL BOARD,

Five Applicants for the Position of Enumerator-Other Matters.

The school board will meet tonight in regular session with much disiness to look after.

The matter of building two new school houses this summer will be the most important matter to consider, and the board will likely act favorably on both. Superintendent of Buildings Fred Hoyer has the specifications for one building, that in Mechanicsburg, complete.

The election of census enumerators will also be held and so far there are five candidates. They are Messrs. J. M. Hart, Frank Dunn, H. fited, your money will be refunded. H. Evans, J. B. Gilbert and B. Mc-

The report of the sanitation committee will also be received. The committee investigated alleged bad sanitary matters at the Longfellow and other buildings and found the report erroneous. The sewerage is in good condition and the sanitation good excepting the High school buildings where no sewerage connections can be had.

Supt. Leib will report the settlement of an alleged misunderstanding at the Lee building when it was alleged a teacher had violently jerked a pupil and dislocated a tendon in the child's neck Supt. Leib will report the attendance but fair, this being occasioned by the bad weather. The schools are doing nicely now and now that more favorable weather has set in the teachers are greatly encouraged.

Mr. Arch Sutherland, of the building committee, stated this morning that nothing had been done towards selling the Longfellow building at Fifth and Kentucky avenue.

The committe has just been "feeling around" and has not yet started out after a purchaser. The real estate market in Paducah is pretty big and the board is simply waiting for some one to come along with anything like a fair offer for the propenty.

Shoffner's Sure Use

The Great Tonic and Blood Purifier-Cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia and Catarrh.

It is a trite and true saying that the "blood is the life." Now where does the blood come from? Everybody knows, or should know, that it comes from the nutritive elements extracted by the stomach from the food we eat. If the digestive organs do not perform their functions by reason of disease germs, there is no nutrition extracted, and the food might better be thrown in the dump to decay and breed germs in the open air than to remain in the stomach and become a rotten, putrid mass, as it naturally does if there is no digestion. No disease germ can live and find lodgment in a human body that uses the Shoffner's Sure Cure, Price $1.00.
